Let's track your dog's itch

Please complete the table below at home and bring it with you to discuss with your vet at your next visit.

This scale is designed to measure severity of itching in dogs. Itching can include scratching, biting, licking, chewing, nibbling or rubbing.

- 0 Normal: No itching here!
- 2 Very mild: Occasional itching throughout the week but not on a daily basis.
- 4 Mild: 1–2 episodes of itching per day, but only when my dog is resting.
- 6 Moderate: Regular episodes of itching throughout the day and often at night. No itching behaviour observed when eating, playing, walking or being distracted.
- 8 Severe or prolonged: Itch occurs at night and when eating, playing, walking or being distracted.
- 10 Extreme or continuous: Non-stop itch; dog is unable to display normal behaviour and is solely focused on itching behaviour.

Day	Date	Itch Score	Day	Date	Itch Score
0			6
1			7
2			14
3			21
4			28
5			35

What is allergic dermatitis?

Allergic dermatitis is an itchy skin condition caused by your dog's immune system reacting to allergens. Itchy skin can interfere with your dog's sleep, play, appetite and behaviour.

Prompt treatment of itch and inflammation is important for your dog's quality of life. Many dogs require lifelong treatment to keep their skin comfortable. Left untreated, constant scratching can lead to other issues such as:

Allergic dermatitis is a disease for life, but our mission is simple: get your dog back to being their happy, tail-wagging self.

Work with your vet to create a straightforward plan that keeps the itch under control.

4 simple steps to success

- 1 Be patient with the process
Diagnosing your dog's itch may take some time. Your vet might check for fleas, infections and food allergies. Stay the course, you are on the right track!
- 2 Consistency is key
Your vet's advice is a great action plan, so follow it step by step. Skipping doses of prescribed medications or changing treatments could delay progress and keep your dog scratching longer. Avoid introducing new treats, food, supplements or coat and hair care products unless these have been discussed with your vet.
- 3 Watch for itching
As your dog gets used to their new treatment, keep an eye out for any breakthrough itching using the handy tracking tool found on the back cover of this leaflet. Discuss this with your vet at your next check-in.
- 4 Celebrate small wins
Every little win counts. Fewer scratches or a wagging tail means your dog is on the path to feeling normal again.
